About

My present academic status has included my studies at the Fashion Institute of Technology of New York which prepared me to work in the ready to wear fashion industry not only with the knowledge of fashion construction and design concepts but as well as identifying separate markets associated with ready to wear such as sports wear company's such as Nike and designing for that market nitch also my studies have included the composition of textiles and weaves of different fabrics in the textile industry. And complementing my study's in Paris France at the Chambre Syndical de la Haute Couture where I learned the art of making beautiful clothing with Haute couture precision techniques and tailoring. As well as completing my studies at the American Business School with a BBA in marketing luxury product's, which has given me a practical vision on the political, and business side of the fashion industry.
