About

I am a hardworking individual with a high-performance attitude, consistently striving to exceed expectations and deliver exceptional results in everything I do. I am a second-year student at Aston University studying Business Computing & IT, I am deeply passionate about data analysis and excel at paying attention to intricate details. My university courses provide me a thorough understanding of cutting-edge technologies and their real-world applications. The business related courses also give me the knowledge and abilities to strategically use these technologies in practical business situations.
