About

I am an ambitious and hardworking individual with a hunger for success and financial freedom. I have a significant amount of experience working within a vast majority of teams whether on the football field or for group assignments at the university. I tend to work well both individually and in a group with very little supervision required. The thing that drives me as an individual is my work ethic, because I would never be where I am or achieved what I have achieved thus far without it, regardless of the obstacles ahead of me. I am looking for part-time work that will allow me to develop a new skill set and help me further develop as an individual. I also have a keen interest on learning about the Bloomberg market, crypto currency and software development.
